Short recital of the case

The General Secretary, Nirsha Thana Coalfield Workshop Workers Union by a letter No. 156(63)/10575, dated the 26th August, 1963, represented to the Conciliation Officer (Central), Dhanbad-II the case of Shri B. N. Sen Gupta, Overman in Charge, stating that Shri Sen Gupta was asked to work in the night shift instead of in the general shift (day shift) as he was previously doing. In protest against this he stopped working and subsequently he was dismissed vide letter dated 28th August, 1963. The Union felt that this was not justified as his status was diminished by such change in his duty hours. The management stated that he was charged for disobedience of orders and after proper enquiry he was dismissed.

However, as a result of discussion held on 30th September, 1963, the following terms of settlement was reached.

Terms of settlement

It is agreed that Shri B. N. Sen Gupta will be paid an amount of Rs. 2,000 in full and final settlement. Rs. 724.53, out of this Rs. 2,000 is towards his bonus and wages dues and the balance is an ex-gratia payment given in consideration of not taking him back in employment.

Order No. 51 (25)/63-LRIV, dated 19th July, 1963, Ministry of Labour and Employment, Government of India, New Delhi.

ISSUE:

"Whether the imposition of a fine of Rs. 5 on Sri L. Kathiresan, Clerk, Sirkali Branch, since transferred to Annamalaiagar Branch of the Indian Bank, Madras is justified, and if not to what relief is the Workman entitled?"

This dispute coming on for final hearing on Thursday the 7th day of November, 1963, upon perusing the Claim and Counter Statements and other material papers on record and upon hearing the arguments of Mr. Ramanathan, Law Officer of the Bank for the Bank and Mr. Ramani, Secretary of the Union for Sri Kathiresan, the Tribunal passed the following:—

AWARD.

This dispute was referred to this Tribunal by the Government of India, Ministry of Labour and Employment by their order dated 19th July, 1963. The point in dispute referred for adjudication to this Tribunal is set out in the Schedule to the Government of India order read above thus:—

"Whether the imposition of a fine of Rs. 5 on Sri L. Kathiresan, Clerk of the Sirkali Branch, since transferred to Annamalaiagar Branch of the Indian Bank Limited, Madras, is justified; if not to what relief is the workman entitled?"

Sri Kathiresan was working as Ledger Clerk in the Sirkali Branch of the Indian Bank Ltd., at the concerned time. On 9th September, 1961, the Agent of the Sirkali Branch of the Indian Bank served a memo written in the office order book upon Sri Kathiresan calling upon him to explain his conduct with reference to what took place in the office on 8th September, 1961. No time limit was specified for submission of the explanation by the clerk concerned. The Clerk asked for 15 days' time to submit his explanation. This was on 9th September, 1961. On the same day, the Agent of the Bank refused to give time but offered to relieve the Clerk of his routine duties for the day (9th September, 1961), to enable him to submit his explanation that day itself. To this, the employee made a curt reply that he could not submit his explanation then. Nothing happened thereafter for over a fortnight. On 25th September, 1961, the Agent called upon Sri Kathiresan why he had not submitted his explanation, although 15 days' time requested by him originally for the purpose had expired. To this the employee replied that if the explanation was still insisted upon he would have to refer the matter to the Union of which he was a member and then submit his explanation. Thereafter on 4th October 1961, the Agent served another memo on the employee Sri Kathiresan containing charges preferred against him. To this the employee submitted an explanation on 10th October, 1961. Papers were then submitted by the Agent to the Management in Madras and the Deputy Secretary of the Indian Bank framed two charges against the employee on 30th November, 1961, and served them on the explanation was still insisted upon he would have to refer the matter to the employee. The charges are the following:—

- "1. On 8th September, 1961, you left the office at 5 p.m. without finishing the work allotted to you and without reporting to your superior officers that the work was not completed. You had not completed the balancing of the current account ledger though the transactions on that day were few and you could have finished the work before 5 p.m. and given the figures for the preparation of the weekly returns to the Head Office.
2. On 9th September, 1961 when the Agent called you to submit your explanation for your above action, you refused to submit the same."

The enquiry was directed to be held by a deputed Officer Sri V. S. Sarangapani Iyengar. According that Officer gave notice to the employee and held the enquiry on 16th December, 1961 and 18th December, 1961 at Sirkali. On behalf of the Management Sri K. V. Subbiah, Agent of the Sirkali Branch was examined as a witness and on behalf of the employee he examined himself as a witness. The Enquiry Officer submitted his finding to the Deputy Secretary of the Bank by his letter, dated 5th January, 1962. The Enquiry Officer held on the evidence that the charges were proved against the employee. A show cause notice was then issued on 10th January, 1962, calling upon the employee to show cause why a fine of Rs. 5 should not be imposed upon him as punishment. To this the employee submitted a written explanation on 15th January, 1962. This was rejected by the Management and the fine of Rs. 5 was imposed, by the Deputy Secretary of the Bank. Thereafter the employee preferred an appeal to the Secretary of the Bank which was rejected.

Various objections are taken to the legality of the proceeding and also the validity of the punishment. They may be classified under four heads, viz., (a) mala fides of the management; (b) unfair labour practice or victimisation; (c) perversity of the finding and violation of principles of natural justice in arriving at the finding by the Enquiry Officer; (d) refusal to submit explanation asked for by the Agent of the Bank would not amount to disobedience of a lawful order because the demand to submit explanation on the same day on which the memo was served upon the employee was unreasonable, perverse and illegal.

I take up the objections under the various heads listed above.

(a) Mala fides of the Management: The charge of mala fides is elaborated in paragraph 7 of the claim statement filed on behalf of the employee. The substance of the charge is that the real reason for the institution of the disciplinary proceedings against the employee was insistence of the employee that he should be paid overtime wages for overtime work done by him in the month of August, 1961. It is alleged that Sri Kathiresan claimed overtime wages for certain number of hours for the period August, 1961 out of which the Agent Sri Subbiah disallowed the claim for 2 hours. This happened on 7th September, 1961. The employee protested against this disallowance and consequently on 8th September, 1961, the Agent revised his previous decision and paid him overtime wages for the 2 hours in question. At that time the Agent is said to have told the employee that thereafter he should not work overtime on any account. It is alleged that the Agent expected the employee to work voluntarily overtime whenever necessary without claiming overtime wages and when the employee refused to submit to this illegal demand, the Agent entertained an unholy desire to punish the employee somehow for this attitude taken up by him. Two aspects are relied upon in support of this charge. First is that Sri K. V. Subbiah was an over-enthusiastic Agent who wanted to curry favour of the superior officers of the Bank by cutting down the overtime charges and therefore on the 5th and 6th of May, 1961, he had instructed his son who was not an employee of the Bank to write some entries in the cash book of the Bank. The second is that consequent upon the employee Kathiresan claiming 2 hours overtime wages during the month of August, 1961, which the Agent had disallowed, the relationship between the Agent and the employee was strained and the Agent orally instructed the employee not to work overtime thereafter under any conditions. In regard to the first matter when the Agent was cross-examined during the enquiry, he admitted that his son who was not an employee of the Bank had written some entries in the Bank cash book on 2 days in the month of May, 1961, although he disclaimed knowledge of the transaction at the time when his son was employed for this purpose. One may discount the denial of knowledge by him. But this does not by any means lead to the inference that the stray incident which took place on the 5th and 6th May has any bearing on the charge which was preferred against the employee Kathiresan on the 9th September, 1961, nearly 4 months thereafter. It is true that responsibility of the Agent to minimise the liability of the Bank for paying overtime wages to the staff might have preyed upon the mind of the Agent when he refused to pay 2 hours wages for overtime by Sri Kathiresan on 7th September, 1961. But shortly thereafter the Agent revised his decision on 8th September, 1961 and paid overtime wages for the 2 hours. Thereafter it could not be said that the Agent nursed any personal grievance against the Clerk concerned for having made the demand for overtime wages. Even if the Agent was actuated by the motive of saving overtime wages liability for the Bank, this is a matter which no individual Clerk can count as a point of grievance between himself and the Agent. At best employment of outside labour for doing clerical job in a Branch is a matter which can be taken up by the Union as labour malpractice. I am unable to see how this general attitude of the Agent impinges upon the alleged ill-feeling between the Agent of the Bank and Sri Kathiresan, ledger Clerk. On the second aspect Sri K. V. Subbiah, the Agent, was cross-examined during the enquiry in the following way:—

"Question: Did you not tell him (8-9-1961) that he need not stay after 5 p.m. on any account?

Answer: As his demand for overtime wages was not fair, I said in the sense that he should take permission to work after 5 p.m."

The point was not pursued further in cross-examination. Obviously what the Agent meant was that with reference to the administration that the Clerk concerned should not work after 5 p.m. if the allotted work for the clerk could be finished normally before 5 p.m. and therefore if there was any need on any working day for staying overtime to clear off the work, the clerk should do so after getting prior permission of the Agent. I am unable to see how this attitude of the Agent could be construed as a direction that on no account the Clerk should work overtime after 5 p.m. No clerk is entitled as of right to work overtime for claiming overtime wages. The legal position is that although a clerk is not bound to work overtime, even if he is willing to work overtime, he could claim wages for such work provided two conditions are satisfied. First is that the amount of work turned out by him on the day in question as also during the week in question would justify the clearing off arrears left over by him by working overtime. Secondly, the claim for overtime wages can only be sustained when impliedly or explicitly the management had requested the Clerk to work overtime. In this case the evidence of the Agent shows that there were only about 205 current accounts in the Sirkali Branch. Sri Kathiresan was in charge of the ledgers relating to these accounts. He was also in charge of loan work of the branch. In the opinion of the Agent the work available was not sufficient to engage the full time of Sri Kathiresan upto 5 p.m. every day. The number of vouchers and the number of entries available during some weeks are given in the evidence of the Agent and therefore the Agent who is responsible for distributing the work seems to have been under the impression that if the Clerk had not been idling away his time, normally he should be able to finish not only his daily work but also his weekly work like balancing the current accounts within the office hours, that is, before 5 p.m. Friday is the day when the clerk concerned viz., Sri Kathiresan is to give a list of current accounts with the balance of each account for the week. Based upon this list prepared by this Clerk a return has to be submitted to the Head Office on Saturday. That return is prepared by another Clerk. It goes without saying that current accounts are balanced every day if not after every entry, and the balancing of the current accounts on Friday only involves the totalling of the entries made on that day and arriving at the balance at the end of that day's work. Of course, names of the current account holders have to be written down for the purpose of noting the balances as against each account. It was urged during the enquiry before me that actually Sri Kathiresan had done 160 accounts that day, that is, Friday, 8th September, 1961, and he had left over only about 45 accounts. According to the contention on behalf of the Union, that was all that could be done that day after banking hours. It appears from the evidence that on the day in question Sri Kathiresan had taken one hour for his lunch while he was entitled to take only half an hour. Having regard to the number of entries which have to be posted in the ledgers on the Friday in question and the fact that the Clerk was not diligent that day, the Agent formed the opinion that the work could have been finished before 5 p.m. if the Clerk had not been slack in his work. Having regard to the number of current accounts available in the branch and the number of transactions in each account for a whole week one could not say that the estimate made by the Agent with regard to the turnover of work by the clerk was unreasonable. That is why the Agent in his answer said that the Claim for overtime wages was not fair. Certainly the Agent was within his right to say that this particular clerk should not work overtime on any day without his permission. It will be the height of perversity to take this direction as a total prohibition for working overtime. I do not therefore agree with the contention of the Union that the disciplinary proceedings was instituted as a result of any mala fides on the part of the Agent of the Bank.

(b) Unfair labour practice or victimisation.—The second charge levelled by the Union relates to unfair labour practice or victimisation. This charge is elaborated in paragraphs 8 and 13 of the claim statement. Unfair labour practice complained of by the Union relates to the employment of the son of the Agent on two days, viz. 5th and 6th May, 1961 for writing some entries in the cash book of the Bank. I have already stated that the son of the Agent was not an employee of the Bank. As observed by me in the earlier portion of this award this practice does not impinge upon the question of misconduct of Sri Kathiresan which was the subject matter in dispute. Victimisation can only arise where an employee is innocent of the charge but he is made a scape goat by the management either because the employee is persona non grata or because he had insisted upon his legal rights. I am unable to find any substance in this charge.

(c) Perversity of the finding and violation of principles of natural justice.—The third charge against the legality of the proceeding is perversity of the finding and violation of principles of natural justice. The first ground put forward in substantiation of this charge is that the Agent was allowed to add to his deposition when he was asked to sign it before the Enquiry Officer. The addition to the deposition which the Agent wanted to make related to the question whether the Clerk had informed the Accountant of the Bank of the existence of arrears and taken permission for leaving office at 5 p.m. The Agent had stated that the Clerk had neither taken permission of the Agent or the Accountant before leaving office at 5 p.m. nor informed these Officers of the existence of arrears of work. The Enquiry Officer took the view that the answer given was sufficiently clear. But the Agent insisted that he should clarify it and he was therefore allowed to clarify his answer by making a further statement. I am unable to see how the Enquiry Officer acted perversely in thus permitting the Agent to explain away what appeared to the Enquiry Officer to be explicit. There was no violation of any principle of natural justice in this conduct of the Enquiry Officer.

It is said that the finding of the Enquiry Officer is perverse because he failed to appreciate the substance of the charge and the evidence in support thereof and had proceeded with the enquiry out of bias and preconceived notions. It is pointed out that the Enquiry Officer had recorded the point at issue under the first charge as "failure to inform superior officers about the stage of the work when the clerk had left office abruptly at 5 p.m." It is true the Enquiry Officer in his order has dealt with the first charge under two heads. The first head is that on 8th September 1961 Sri Kathiresan left the office at 5 p.m. without finishing the work allotted to him and without reporting to the superior officers that the work was not completed. The second charge is that Sri Kathiresan could have completed the balancing of current account ledger and given the figures before 5 p.m. for the preparation of the weekly return, as the transactions available, that day, i.e., 8th September 1961 were few. Both these sub-heads are comprised in charge No. 1 framed by the Deputy Secretary of the Bank. It is true that failure to finish the work by 5 p.m. on that day is not mentioned in the charge framed by the Deputy Secretary as due to deliberate slackness of the Clerk. But that is implicit in the charge and this was brought out clearly during the proceeding as could be seen from the questions put to the Agent by the Clerk in cross-examination with reference to out-turn of work by the Clerk during some other weeks for the purpose of comparison. There is therefore no substance in the contention that the Enquiry Officer misconceived the substance of the charge and his finding was therefore perverse.

Another ground taken on behalf of the Union was that the Accountant should have been examined as a witness suo motu by the Enquiry Officer to find out the truth between two rival contentions, namely, the Clerk asserting that he had informed the Accountant before leaving the Office and the Management's contention that the Clerk left without informing either the Agent or the Accountant. It is conceivable that even though the Clerk did not cite the Accountant as a witness at the Enquiry, it would be the duty of the Enquiry Officer to have himself examined the Accountant to find out the truth in regard to this matter, if the Clerk had at any earlier stage specifically taken the stand that he had taken the permission of the Accountant before leaving the office at 5 p.m. or at least informed the Accountant at 5 p.m. that he was leaving the office although there was arrear of work on hand. This Clerk submitted a reply on 10th October 1961 in answer to the two memos issued by the Agent, one on 9th September 1961 and the other on 4th October 1961. In the memo dated 9th September 1961 it was definitely stated that the Clerk was called upon to explain why he left the office at 5 p.m. without informing the Agent or the Accountant, although in the letter of the Agent to the Clerk dated 4th October 1961 this point was not referred to. It will be seen that in the explanation submitted by the Clerk with reference to both these memos there is no averment that he informed the Accountant before leaving the office at 5 p.m. Thus, I am unable to hold that the Enquiry Officer came to a perverse conclusion when he believed the version of the Agent and disbelieved the version of the Clerk on this matter without summoning the Accountant as a witness for the purpose of ascertaining the truth between these two rival versions.

There is hardly any substance in the contention that charge No. 1 did not refer to the fact that the clerk left the office without reporting to his superior officers though the work was not completed. The formal charge framed by the Deputy Secretary of the Bank does contain this allegation, although the note of the Agent dated 4th October 1961 does not refer to this matter. Nothing would turn upon this omission because the formal charge laid against the Clerk by the Deputy Secretary does contain this allegation. I am not able to find any perversity in the findings of the Enquiry Officer, although I may not fully agree with the Enquiry Officer as regards his conclusion on the third charge; nor am I able to find any violation of the principles of natural justice in the conduct of the enquiry.

(d) Refusal to submit explanation asked for by the Agent would not amount to disobedience of lawful order.—Lastly it was urged that the third charge could not be held to be established because refusal of the Agent to give time asked for by the Clerk for submitting his explanation was unreasonable in the circumstances. It is true that the Agent offered to relieve the Clerk of the day's work to enable him to submit his explanation that day itself. The Clerk did not (in my opinion unreasonably) take advantage of this offer but curtly refused to submit the explanation that day, because he wanted to consult the Union before submitting his explanation. One cannot lay down any uniform rule as to the giving of time for submitting explanation by an employee. The facts of each case must govern the decision. Some charges might be very simple and require only factual explanation when the Agent could refuse any long period of time asked for. Other charges might require time for preparation of the explanation in which case a longer time, say, 3, 5 or 7 days should usually be granted to an employee for submitting the explanation. Without therefore laying down any uniform rule applicable to all cases, I find that the conduct of the Agent in this case in calling upon the employee to submit his explanation that very day could not be held to be quite proper. Even assuming that the explanation called for was only a factual explanation, certainly the employee was entitled to some time to think over the matter before submitting the explanation. Under the circumstances, the Agent would have been well advised to have allowed some time more than the time allowed by him for submitting the explanation. In view of this, I am unable to agree fully with the contention of the management that the order of the Agent to submit the explanation before 5 p.m. on 9th September 1961 was a lawful order and therefore the Clerk could not be held to be guilty of disobedience of that order. But that does not affect the question of legality of the punishment.

It is well settled that the jurisdiction of this Tribunal in regard to these matters is not that of an appellate Court. It is unnecessary to refer to all the decisions of the Supreme Court on the point except the decision in SUR ENAMEL & STAMPING WORKS VS. THEIR WORKMEN reported in 1963 II M.L.L.J. 367. The head note of that decision succinctly lays down the position of law thus:

"It is now settled by various decisions that if an industrial employee's services are terminated after a proper domestic enquiry held in accordance with the rules of natural justice and the conclusions reached at the enquiry are not perverse, the industrial tribunal is not entitled to consider the propriety or the correctness of the said conclusions. But the said decisions do not mean that the mere form of an enquiry would satisfy the requirements of industrial law and would protect the disciplinary action taken by the employer".

This decision further lays down the test that should be applied to find out if the enquiry was held properly. They are:

1. The employee proceeded against should have been informed clearly of the charges levelled against him.
2. Witnesses should ordinarily be examined in the presence of the employee. These witnesses should substantiate the charges framed against the employee.
3. The employee should be given a fair opportunity to examine witnesses including himself in his defence if he so wishes on any relevant matter.
4. The employee should be given a fair opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses.
5. The Enquiry Officer should record his findings with reasons for the same.

It cannot be said that any of these requisites have been transgressed in this case.

Lastly it was contended that the finding of the Enquiry Officer as regards the disobedience of the order of the Agent being a finding which could not be supported fully, the punishment inflicted upon the clerk must be held to be severe or excessive. In my view, a fine of Rs. 5/- in my opinion for the finding under Charge No. 1 is not at all severe. The finding of the Enquiry Officer in respect of the first charge discloses the totally irresponsible attitude of the clerk. When analysed, the attitude of the Clerk comes to this. Even though there was arrear of work at the end of the day which should be cleared off to enable the Agent to send his weekly return to the Head Office the next day, he did not feel that he was responsible to inform the superior officers of the existence of such arrear. He may not be willing to work overtime to clear off this arrear. But certainly it was his duty to inform either the Agent or the Accountant of the existence of such arrear so that another Clerk might be deputed to do the work in time to enable the Agent to despatch the weekly return to the Head Office in time. The attitude of the Clerk in postponing the work of preparation of the weekly list of the balances of current accounts till the last day is clearly unjustified and can only be explained by the desire of the Clerk to earn overtime wages. At least the names of the accounts could have been made ready even before Friday and the balances could have been entered against the names on the Friday in question. Such conduct on the part of the Clerk deserved punishment. I am unable to hold that the punishment inflicted is either excessive or out of proportion to the proved guilt of the Clerk.

My finding on the issue referred for adjudication is that the imposition of fine of Rs. 5/- on Sri Kathiresan is justified. Consequently the workman concerned is not entitled to any relief.

There will be an award accordingly. The Union will pay the Management Rs. 50/- as costs of the Enquiry before this Tribunal.
